1. Introduction

In 2016 an Action Programme was prepared to support delivery of the Angus Local Development Plan (ALDP) as required by Section 21 of the Town and Country Planning (Scotland) Act 1997 (as amended).

The Action Programme:

- Lists the actions required to deliver each of the ALDP policies, proposals and land allocations;
- Identifies who (organisation or person and partners) is responsible for each action; and
- Indicates the broad timescale for implementation.

Actions and infrastructure needed to deliver the policies and proposals in the Local Development Plan (LDP) and to overcome known constraints are identified to give confidence to key stakeholders, developers and funders.

Whilst not all actions have detailed programmes or committed funding, this is a working document and, in line with the Act, Angus Council are required to review and republish it regularly (at least every two years from the date of adoption of the LDP) to demonstrate the progress made by the Council and its partners in delivery and implementation.

This 2022 update provides a snapshot overview of the policy development work and development activity since the previous Action Programme update in December 2020. It is complemented by a live action programme on an interactive map base to reflect the most recent site updates, following liaison with landowners and/or developers.

Since the 2020 Update:

- 3 further allocated housing sites have reached completion along with the site of the former swimming pool at The Mall, Montrose which opened in October 2021 as a cinema and arts centre/ café bar.
- 19 development sites are now under construction, the majority of which are for housing, development has started at the Pitskelly employment site in Carnoustie, and progress made at the former Sunnyside Hospital redevelopment site.
- several allocated or opportunity sites have moved to the planning application stage, including land at Brechin, Newtyle and Carnoustie.
- Several opportunity sites and sites identified in the plan as 'existing housing sites' (they had planning permission at the time the plan was prepared), are identified as having stalled or remaining in existing uses due to planning permission lapsing or constraints to development not being addressed.
- The Brothock Flood Prevention Scheme in Arbroath is expected to be completed in 2022.
- Existing employment areas in Montrose, Kirriemuir, and Forfar have seen new planning applications with some developments now under construction.

- The Arbroath: A Place for Everyone project is nearing completion of the technical design phase which involved significant community collaboration, and the pre-construction feasibility is underway. Construction is due to begin in 2023.
- A number of policy work areas have been progressed further – blue/green networks, local nature conservation sites, review of infrastructure capacity (developer contributions), open space strategy and heat and energy strategy. Some policy areas require to be reviewed and taken forward as part of preparation of the next LDP – conservation area appraisals/conservation area boundaries and town centre strategies.

Changing Context

The 2020 update indicated significant changes to the planning system and in the wider policy landscape which had implications for several of the policy actions identified in the Angus Local Development Plan (hereafter referred to as ALDP) at the time of adoption in 2016. These changes continue to be a relevant factor impacting the implementation of the Plan.

It is also recognised that the ALDP is now more than 5 years old, which has implications for its implementation and the relative status of its policy content in some instances. The policies of the adopted NPF4 will have a role in informing day to day decision making on planning applications in Angus. A revised draft of NPF4 was laid in Parliament in November 2022 for consideration and if approved by Parliament may be adopted by Scottish Ministers in early 2023.

The development plan status of NPF4 may have the effect of ‘updating’ aspects of the policies of the ALDP, resulting in a more up-to-date development planning framework for Angus while the new LDP is prepared over the next few years. The Angus Development Plan Scheme 2022 approved by Council in September 2022 sets out more fully the process for preparation of the new LDP.

It looked at low carbon heat feasibility in different types of rural communities. Recommended measures: air source heat pumps suitable for most property types and therefore strategically important; biomass boilers potential in large rural properties with high heat demands; Angus well suited to renewable power generation. The Heat Networks (Scotland) Act 2021 came into force in February 2021, with regulations to be in place by 2024 to encourage and regulate the development of heat networks in Scotland. All public sector building owners will need to assess whether their buildings are suitable to connect to a local heat network. The national Heat Map has been revised to reflect improved datasets. Ambitious targets continue to be reviewed to meet decarbonisation targets with an increasingly fine grained analysis of energy needs and use through Local Area Planning. A new team has been established in AC to draw together related policy areas on climate change, renewables and nature. Future Actions: Preparation of an Angus Local Heat and Energy Efficiency Strategy is underway and a

4. Delivering Development: Settlement Strategy Actions

Section 4 details actions relating to the delivery of development proposals in the Local Development Plan for each of the 7 Towns, 4 Rural Service Centres and other areas where land is identified detailing the current development status of sites, actions undertaken to date and proposed future activity, those parties involved in project delivery and the proposed or estimated timescale. Those sites which have been completed since the 2020 update are listed at the end of each settlement.

This information is based on the annual monitoring of housing and employment sites carried out by the Planning Service as well as the regular contact maintained with landowners and developers about their progress towards delivering the sites in the Local Development Plan. The live action programme available on the Council's website allows users to view the current status of sites.
